KICKERS' KOLUM

Kick Editor: Fully appreciating the good the Gazette is doing in their campaign for better roads and side walks in the city I would like to remark that you seem to be forgetting the bridges. There are two good spans over Rock river in the city of Janesville. They are the Court street and Monterey bridges. Both are prides of the city. Three others are poor and the Jackson street and Fourth avenue bridges are positive shames. The first mentioned is closed to all heavy traffic and it is necessary to reach Spring Brook via the Monterey bridge or Main street.
Spring Brook is the growing portion of the town and the municipality
should speed its expansion by improving its approach. The Fourth avenue bridge is also in fearful condition.
Each spring it is dangerous because of the ice and just a few weeks ago was under condemnation that only immediate repairs suspended. The Milwaukee street bridge of course is still sound but by no means a credit to Janesville. If the city is to be soberly improved by a new electric line to Madison and the location of large freight assorting yards of the Chicago & Northwestern railway company, why should not the municipality expend a goodly sum in new bridges?

BreakfastMalta-Vita is rich in all the nutrition of the best white wheat and finest malt extract and is practically predigested because the malt extract, when mixed with the cooked and matured wheat, turns the starch of the wheat into maltose or malt sugar. Maltose, a great strength-building and health-giving food element, is readily assimilated and taken up by the blood.
Malta-Vita thus furnishes the body and brain with needed nourishment in abundant without giving the stomach a lot of hard work to do and without heating the blood and without clogging the system with useless waste material.
Malta-Vita is all food and most delicious food. Eaten with milk, cream or fruit
it makes the ideal hot weather breakfast.

NORTHWESTERN LIFE
ELECTED TRUSTEESAdministration Slate Was Carried by an Overwhelming Majority.At the election of trustees of the Northwestern Life Insurance Co. in Milwaukee yesterday, the official slate won and the insurgents, or policyholders, who wished to elect a trustee not supported by the administration, were so far in number that out of a total of 42,000 votes they could only muster about 3,000. The nine elected were: A. K. Hamilton, E. F.
Adams, T. C. Lawler, H. F. Whit-
comb, W. D. Van Dyke, H. W. Silver, and George H. Noyes, all former trustees, and J. A. Madison, and members. The vote for other persons was scattered. J. M. Whitehead of Janesville received 356. His candidacy was opposed by the administration. It is understood on the grounds that he was a member of the state legislature. Fourteen other persons were in the race with him. H. L.

A. Loveland, secretary; W. F. Adams,

The bride looked very sweet in white crepe de-chine trimmed with mechilace over white tulle, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The parlors were beautifully decorated with daisies and ferns and the bride's table in pink and green. The bride is a recently one of the primary instruc-

IN SWARMS IN IOWAGrasshopper Invasion Said To Be Coming From The Far West.Sioux City, Ia., July 18.—Within a few weeks the farmers of the west will see their fields devastated by millions of locusts; the prediction made by Professor Willis Marshall of Sioux City, formerly professor of mathematics in Morningstar college and the Sioux City high school and a scientist of some distinction in the northwest. According to Professor Marshall the seventeen-year locusts are on schedule time and the winds which will sweep over the corn fields of Iowa and Nebraska and the wheat fields of Minnesota and South Dakota during August and September will bring with them from the northwest millions and millions of locusts.Professor Marshall also says that the thirteen-year species is due this summer, a coincidence that happens
but once in 200 years. "I have reports," says Professor Marshall, "from scientists in the far northwest; who tell me that there are swarms of locusts in Washington and Montana and that they are moving toward the great agricultural regions of the middle west. Some of them will be of the Rocky mountain locust species, which are not as destructive as the seventeen-year and the thirteen-year varieties.""If the locust line of march can be determined," said the professor, "I should advise the farmers to dig trenches into which the insects can fall and be drowned. The rivers will be of great assistance to the farmers,
as countless millions of the insects will fall into streams, although but little can be done to destroy the winged hordes, having the migratory instinct."The fact that there are no flies worth mention is ominous of a locust plague. It is well into July and yet the flies are not a pest to mankind in the west. Few of them are seen following the sweating teams in the fields and the houses are almost free from them. Professor Marshall declares the locusts do not come when the air is filled with common house flies, as the flies destroy the locust
eggs.Special Train Excursion to Madison

A man admires nothing more in a woman than helplessness, he thinks it,
like patience, is a sign of womanliness; and womanliness is the one quality he can never resist. Now, the helpless female is rapidly becoming extinct—golf and tennis and hockey, hunting, fencing and sandow have killed her. With the development of her muscular powers it would seem that she is losing a great deal of her influence over man.—Ladies' Field.Lake Geneva

SEEM QUESTIONABLEHowever There is No Doubt But That a Good Heavy Rain Would Be of General Benefit.Although reports as to the conditions of growing crops are very much diversified there is no doubt but that a soaking rain would be of general benefit. The pastures are practically dried up and tobacco has suffered some from the drought of the past two weeks but whether other crops
have been injured there is a question. Some farmers report much damage from the intense heat while others rejoice in this long stretch of corn weather. There is little doubt but that the weather has been favorable to the corn, but a rain would not injure that crop and much good would be done otherwise.Special Train to Madison Friday, July

...FORTY YEARS AGO...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, July 19th, 1866.—All parties interested, are hereby notified that the Ordinance requiring the cleaning of Main, Milwaukee and Court streets, on or before Friday of each week, will be duly enforced. Henry Palmer, Mayor.

Attempt at Burglary.—Some burglars last evening attempted to enter the apartments of Mr. G. Fritz, on Main street. The door was locked from the inside and the key left in the lock. The burglars turned the key by means of a screw and had partly effected an entrance when Mr. Fritz was awakened by the noise. He immediately struck a light, when they made their escape. He promises to be well prepared for them when they call again. There are several suspicious looking characters lounging about the streets and it would be well for our police officers to ascertain what their business is.

Ministerial Association.—The association composed of the Methodist preachers of Janesville district are holding a pleasant and profitable though prophetic session in the city of Janesville. Thus far the session has been of uninterrupted harmony notwithstanding the presence of Madison Fellows and some other as hard cases as are often found at such places.

RABBIT'S STRANGE REFUGE

Bunny Leads Pursuing Lynx Into Hunter's Tent and Makes His Escape.

That the instinct of self preservation is not confined to the human race is evident from many instances in the experience of hunters in the north woods.

A trapper in the Tadjanemnon river country, relates the fact that while seated in his tent one evening at dusk there was a sudden commotion at the entrance and in peeped a rabbit. Behind the rabbit in hot pursuit came another animal, which fairly shot down the snow incline into the tent.

This animal proved to be a lynx. For a moment it did not dawn upon the trapper that it had been caught in a snare, and then it jumped to the opposite side of the tent and began to claw the canvas and snarl. By this time the trapper had grabbed a club and was on his feet. The fight that followed was lively and how he managed to dodge the lynx and also hit it in the semi-darkness, is he says, a mystery, but it was not long before the lynx was scuttled out lifeless. The hunter came out of the encounter with a few scratches and in the meantime the rabbit escaped.

Placed in the future, Visitor (in peremptory to hard-looking inmate)—My good man, I am told that you will soon be released. Have you any plans for the future?

Strong-Arm Jim—Sure thing, I got plans of two banks and four private houses.

LIKE A BUTTERFLY NET.

Quar Contrivance Used by the Filipino When He Sets Out to Capture a Mass of Fish.

An odd sort of fish catching contrivance used in the Philippine islands may be seen at the New York aquarium. It is an open work, dome-shaped thing about two feet in height and two feet across in its widest part, at the bottom, made of thin strips of a native wood. The upper ends of these strips are brought closely together around a circle of wood at the top, while from there they spread out uniformly wider and wider apart like the wires in the top part of a round top bird cage. Up under these strips, about six inches below the top, is set a wooden hoop, to which each of the strips is bound, and over this hoop the strips are strung with a slight curve, to be held in shape and at uniform distances apart by a tie run around a couple of inches above their bottom ends. So that this is an open dome shaped contrivance made of slender curving vertical ribs; and in its construction it shows, nice workmanship. The island fisherman uses this fish catcher in catching fish much as a boy uses his hat in catching butterflies; he claps it down over such comparatively sluggish and bottom feeding fish as he can get near enough to for that purpose, and through an opening in the top of the catcher he reaches down inside of it to seize the fishes thus caught.

COMMERCIAL AMERICA.

Commercial America in 1905 is the title of a monograph just issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statistics.

It discusses the commerce of and commercial conditions in each country of America in 1905 where possible, or in the latest available year where the figures of 1905 have not been announced.

The special purpose of this monograph is to present the latest available information regarding commerce and commercial conditions in the various countries south of the United States, practically all of which are to be represented in the Pan-American Congress which is to meet in Rio de Janeiro in the present month, and to supply to the delegation from the United States and to others attending the congress this information in a single volume and in convenient form for study and reference.

The work has been under preparation in the Bureau of Statistics for several months, and includes statistics of the imports and exports of each American country by principal articles and the countries from which the imports are drawn and those to which exports are sent.

Great difficulty has been encountered by the Bureau of Statistics in the preparation of this document in view of the fact that more than half of the countries of Central and South America have no satisfactory statistics of their foreign commerce.

Statements with reference to their trade were therefore necessarily made up by taking from the records of the principal importing and exporting nations of the world the statements of their trade with the countries in question and supplementing them with such other information as could be obtained from consular reports and other standard and generally accepted publications.

By this process the Bureau of Statistics has been able to present a picture of trade conditions in every country and island of America, supplemented with a text discussion regarding production, transportation, and commerce, and commercial possibilities of each, and this is followed by a detailed statement of the trade of the United States with each of the countries and islands in question, by articles, during a long term of years.

The total commerce of all America is shown to be $5,069,027,000, of which $2,806,119,000 is that of the United States, leaving $2,262,908,000 as the total commerce of all American countries other than the United States.

Imports and exports being combined to form these grand totals. Considering imports separately, the total for all America is $2,184,337,000, of which $1,179,135,000 is the imports of the United States, and the remainder, $1,005,202,000, the imports of other American countries.

The exports of all America are $2,885,650,000, of which $1,626,984,000 is from the United States and the remainder, $1,258,666,000, is the exports of all other American countries.

Thus, of all imports into all America about 54 per cent enter the United States, and of the exports from all America about 57 per cent go from the United States.

Turning to the countries south of the United States, the chief subject of interest at the present moment, the monograph shows that the imports of all American countries and islands lying south of the United States aggregated 732 million dollars in the latest available year, and the exports aggregated $1,003,000,000.

Of these imports the United States supplies 189 million dollars, or practically 26 per cent; of the exports the United States takes 350 million dollars, or practically 35 per cent.

The general fact that the United States supplies 26 per cent of the imports of the American countries lying south of her borders, and takes 35 per cent of their exports, suggests a fairly satisfactory trade relation between this country and her Spanish-American neighbors.

An analysis of the figures, country by country, however, shows some sharp contrasts in the share which the various countries take of their imports from the United States and the share of their exports which they send to this country.

In those countries whose ports or consuming centers have shorter transportation routes to this country than to Europe the share of their imports drawn from the United States is larger than from any other country. In those countries from which the steamship route to the United States is not materially shorter than to European countries, the share of the imports supplied by the United States is small, even though the share which she takes of their exports is large in the former group, in which the length of transportation routes to the United States is less than that to Europe, are included Mexico, Central America, Colombia, Venezuela, the Guianas, and the West Indian Islands, and the share of their imports drawn from the United States ranges from 25 to 75 per cent, and averages for the entire group 47 per cent.

In the second group, from whose ports the steamship routes to the averages for the entire group 12 per cent.

The aggregate imports of the first-mentioned group (in which the length of transportation routes to the United States is less than that to Europe) are 235 million dollars in the latest year for which statistics are available, and of this 134 millions or practically 47 per cent was drawn from the United States.

Of the second group (from whose ports the steamship lines to the United States are not materially shorter than those to Europe) the aggregate imports are 446 million dollars, and those drawn from the United States 55 millions, or a fraction above 12 per cent.

Porto Rico, now a customs district of the United States, is not included in the above calculations. The United States supplied in the fiscal year 1905 84.5 per cent of the $16,536,259 worth of merchandise entering that island and took 83.5 per cent of the $18,709,565 worth of merchandise sent out of the island.

In the first group of countries (which have shorter transportation routes to the United States than to Europe) Mexico, with direct railway routes to the United States, takes 53 per cent of her imports from this country, Cuba 45 per cent, the Central American countries 43 per cent, Colombia 44 per cent, Venezuela 36 per cent, West Indian Islands except Cuba and Porto Rico 35 per cent, Santo Domingo 60 per cent, Haiti 76 per cent, and the Guianas, colonies of European countries, 24 per cent.

Of the second group of countries (from whose ports the steamship routes to the United States are not materially shorter than those to Europe), the share of the imports drawn from the United States is in the case of Ecuador 25 per cent, Peru 18 per cent, Argentina 14 per cent, Brazil 11 per cent, United States are not materially shorter than those to Europe, are included Brazil, Uruguay, Paraguay, Argentina, and the entire western coast of South America, and the share of their imports which they draw from the United States ranges from 25 per cent downward to 3 1/2 per cent and Chile 9 per cent, Uruguay 8 1/2 per cent, Bolivia 6 1/2 per cent, and Paraguay 3 1/2 per cent.

The share of the exports of these countries which is sent to the United States is largely determined by our local demand for the products of the individual countries. Cuba, whose chief exports are sugar and tobacco, of which the United States is a large importer, sends to the United States 86 per cent of her total exports; Haiti, whose chief export is sugar, sends 94 per cent of her exports to the United States; Santo Domingo, which also exports chiefly sugar, sends 68 per cent of her exports to the United States; the Central American States, exporting fruits and coffee, of which the United States is a large importer, send 42 per cent of their exports to this country; Brazil, whose chief exports are coffee and India rubber, of which the United States is a large importer and consumer, sends 50 per cent of her exports to this country; and Mexico, whose most important exports are sisal grass, copper, lead, hides, and skins, coffee, and various tropical products, of which the United States is a large importer, sends 68 per cent of her exports to this country.

The causes of this sharp contrast in the share of the imports drawn from the United States by the two groups of countries are suggested by a study of the map and the routes followed by the steamships upon which the South and Central American countries are entirely dependent for their transportation of imports and exports. The most easterly point of the South American Continent, which all steamships must pass in their routes to and from the ports of eastern and western South America, is much farther east than the principal commercial ports of the United States. The distance which a steamship must travel from that point to New York is greater than to less western Europe, and but little less than to the principal commercial ports of northwestern Europe. With the large supply of European-owned steamships running regularly between South America and the ports of Europe, and the comparatively small supply running to and from the ports of the United States, the trade of the South American countries naturally trends toward European ports, and this is intensified by the fact that much of the trade, finance, and banking facilities of South America are also in the hands of or controlled by Europeans.

The fact that Brazil sends direct to the United States over 800 million pounds of coffee and 35 million pounds of India rubber annually, that Argentina sends 40 million pounds of wool and 29 million pounds of hides, that Chile sends 60 million pounds of nitrates, and that Brazil, Argentina, and the countries of the west coast of South America send in addition to this over 17 million dollars' worth of miscellaneous merchandises suggests that the vessels bringing this large quantity of merchandise should offer ample facilities for direct shipments from the United States to those countries on the return trip. This result, however, is not realized, since a large proportion of the vessels bringing this merchandise from these South American countries to the United States take cargoes from this country to Europe, where, after discharging those cargoes, they reload with European merchandise for South America, thus by these triangular voyages materially reducing the opportunity for direct shipments from the United States to South America.

BEAUTIFUL JANESVILLE.

When the one-time resident whom outrageous fortune has compelled to relinquish his citizenship returns for the annual summer home-gathering which has been an unrecognized, but in reality a very tangible institution in Janesville since the Mississippi steamers made their last call at this port, old friends and neighbors point with pride at this thing and at that—the new homes, and churches, the new factories, the new skyscrapers, the modern thoroughfares, the parks and lawns and shade trees which testify to our people's unrelenting devotion to the beautiful, the improved culture, manner of dress and conversation, the 20th century business methods, etc., etc., and the poor exile is filled with longing, or at least greatly impressed. If he isn't he ought to be.

Let us suppose that a chance automobile picks him up at close of day and whisks him out to the hills to the westward and he is permitted to stand for a moment on the crest of one of those green slopes and gaze at the panorama of towers and turrets and steeples, cottages and mansions, gathered in close formation down by the broad river or aloof, but not excluded, on the heights, and the whole belted in and interwoven by a gorgeous scarf of foliage in which gay tints merge, not without a good natured struggle with the sombre and once into sight again on the next forty-acre lot. Suppose the returned wanderer is given this opportunity. He may have traveled far. He may have reveled in the beauties of the Rhine, the Alpine country, the Scottish highlands, the Rocky mountains, or the Hudson, but he capitulates when this scene is unfolded before his vision.

Thousands of Janesville people have never enjoyed such a view of Janesville. Before that section of the outlying district was made into a playground, few knew that such a view was obtainable. Some who helped create the playground have never seen it and groan because they have had no return on their investment. They should stop whining, leave the stifling old House of Cash for an hour or two just at twilight, and go forth to feast their eyes. So much depends on the viewpoint. There are a few odd corners of the town that might not look very nice under a microscope. Permit the health officer and the city attorney to attend to them. Get off a little ways where YOU can get a fair and true perspective of your home city, your neighbors, yourself.

Some day when the velvet that has gone into lead and zinc mines has been replaced, some enterprising local individual or corporation will take a few hundred dollars and build a little summer inn with a dance hall and adequate boating, and bathing accommodations about a mile up river. When this comes to pass our Sunday school picnicers will not have to journey twenty or thirty miles for a day's outing, and pleasure-seekers in general will not have to fight their way through so many hardships and vicissitudes to a good time.

Just the the present stage the outlook for District Attorney Jerome's play to the galleries which was to overshadow alleged delinquencies in the prosecution of the insurance men and restore him to full public favor, is not very promising. Is Harry Thaw sane?

Every once in a while some apt punster says something really pat and the verdict "Hang him!" is suspended. His name was Pat, he possessed a roly-poly visage, and when he idly picked up a fan and demanded exultantly: "See 'Pat' Fanning, nobody made any effort to kick him."

All the world loves a belfry possessor of a new, unique, and original bat. The Cox's, J. P.'s, Carrie Nation's and Louis Gourdain's are more discussed and longer remembered by a generation than the great savants.

Now that an armistice has been declared the casual reader will take notice that some sort of dooryard squabble has been in progress in Central America.

Senator La Follette is to be in Milwaukee today, but it is gravely announced that he may not say anything about Lenroot for a week.

Doesn't It Make You Boil?

La Crosse Chronicle: The Cincinnati laundry trust, which sets up in its defense that it is not a combination in restraint of trade, but merely a labor union, has raised a very interesting question.

Too Tame to Be President.

Madison Democrat: It is reported that when Secretary Shaw made a fizzle while playing golf he simply said "We'll." Talk about making presidential timber out of such mild-mannered golfers!

And Willy Listened!

El Paso Herald: Wise men have counseled Willy Hearst that it will take the country a decade or so to be educated to his peculiar ideas. If indeed it ever be, and he has decided to be a hanger on the Bryan kite tail pending that event.

That Is, It's Supposed to Be.

Sheboygan Journal: The curiosity shown by New Yorkers to see Mrs. Harry K. Thaw, which leads them to grab her veil as she leaves the Tombs, recalls the fact that most of the culture of the country is located on Manhattan Island and enclosed with a high fence.

Hoard Endorses Him.

Chippewa Herald: Ex-Governor Hoard and son have signed Governor Davidson's nomination papers. That is an endorsement that ought to set some of the "radicals" to thinking. Governor Hoard bears the reputation of doing things conscientiously.

Habits of the Chipmunk.

Green Bay Gazette: The question of whether a chipmunk can climb a tree is proving a serious one for F. Griffin, the Sentinel poet. His recent effusion telling of the chipmunk leaping from tree to tree has been criticised, owing to the fact that the little fellows burrow and are known as ground squirrels. But possibly the poet had in mind fallen trees.

Vineless Potato Swindle.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The vineless potato swindle, which proved a good graft for several months, has gone glimmering, the government having issued a fraud order against its promoters. The prosperity which was showered on them on behind this enterprise simply goes to verify P. T. Barnum's saying to the effect that the people love to be humbugged.

Fond du Lac Bulletin: It is said that Jacob Heyl, the son-in-law of the late Mrs. Lizette Schandeln, will make his home in Buffalo. No one

Can we longer afford to overlook the fact that we can secure the very best of dental service at about half the rates we have been paying? Dr. Richards of Janesville, the independent dentist, says he would be delighted to have his work (put out at a modest price) compared with work done by others at possibly double his prices. He affirms that the comparison will establish the fact that his work is good in every respect. His work is lasting.

His work is done thoroughly. His work is substantial, and, in fact, not excelled by that of any other local dentist.

In addition to the reasonableness of his prices he gives close attention to painless work. Now see what you get by having him do your dental work.

CLOUGH COMING IN AUTOMOBILE

PROMOTER OF PROPOSED MADISON INTERURBAN STARTS.

HE LEAVES ELLYRIA TODAY

Is Expected to Arrive in Janesville Next Wednesday—Engineers Come Tuesday.

H. H. Clough, who would build an interurban road from Janesville to Madison, is expected in the city by Wednesday next. He leaves Elyria, Ohio, today in his big Cleveland touring-car and will spend Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in Chicago. As soon as he arrives something definite will be done regarding the proposed road. Mr. Clough will probably remain in Janesville for some time to personally supervise the preliminary work of surveying the proposed road and planning the franchise which will be asked of the common council. Mr. Clough means business and work will not drag when he arrives.

Looked Over Situation.
William Thornburgh, the engineer sent by Mr. Clough to go over the different routes to Madison, has completed his preliminary work. Mr. Thornburgh said this morning that a party of engineers with instruments were on their way to Janesville and would arrive on Tuesday. They would however await Mr. Clough's arrival Wednesday before beginning work. Mr. Thornburgh is much impressed with the country the proposed interurban will run over. The results of his observations will be presented to Mr. Clough and with Mr. Clough the entire route gone over again before any definite decision is reached. Mr. Thornburgh is an experienced road-builder for electric lines and probably will have charge of the construction of the Madison line when the routes are decided upon.

By the Lakes.
Reports from the lake region south of Madison and adjacent to Stoughton are that the road will run north and make easy access to the summer resorts on both Lake Kegonsa and Lake Waubesa. Just how much truth there is to this is not known, as Mr. Thornburgh is reticent about any observations he has made becoming public until approved by Mr. Clough. Just how the road will leave the city is still undecided. Up the river appears to find favor with many and talk is rife that it will follow the banks of the Rock to Indian Fort and then branch off to Edgerton and west up to Stoughton, tapping the west side of Lake Kegonsa and the same side of Lake Waubesa, going into Madison near the fair grounds and McConna Lake Assembly property.

Milton Route.
There is also talk that the road will run to Milton, continuing on Milton avenue. Mr. Thornburgh has gone over both routes and his decision will be presented to Mr. Clough and then decided upon. Talk of running a loop from the cemetery directly across the country to the Golf Links and then down Magnolia road and avenue to the main line seems to have no basis in evidence. This would obviate the main grade should the road run on Magnolia avenue and then cross to the cemetery as has been talked.

At Madison.
Meanwhile Manager Montgomery of the Madison Street Railway company is extending his line south through the city to the limits and thence around the lake by the Battle Creek sanitarium, the Gun-club grounds, the county fair grounds, and to the south-west gate of the Chautauqua grounds. Work is being rushed. The road is already partially built along Brooks street in Greenbush nearly to the city limits. The Madison line has also been improved by new cars and new equipment throughout and is suitable for interurban service.

Words of Praise.
How much more comfortable and how much pleasanter the band concerts this summer than in the past three, when they were given one week on the Corn Exchange and one week on the Court House park. The park is the place to have them and Leader Knott deserves credit for having insisted that they be held there this year. There are places for hundreds to sit comfortably on the grass or benches and enjoy them and the band seems better than ever this summer.

ARMISTICE TERMS FULLY RESPECTED

MINISTER MUNOZ DENIES VIOLATION OF THE PACT

PLACED IN A FALSE LIGHT

Stories That Guatemala Continued Fighting After It Had Agreed to Cease Hostilities Are Declared to Be Untrue.

Washington, July 19.—The Guatemalan minister, Mr. Munoz, is much annoyed by reports from Salvadorean points that Guatemala continued fighting after it had agreed to cease hostilities. "Such stories are absolutely without foundation," he said. "There was no agreement to cease fighting until the armistice went into effect Wednesday morning, and the enemies of my government were endeavoring to put it in a false light. Negotiations for an armistice have been confused with the actual agreement to stop war, and in justice to my government I hope it will be generally understood that any fighting done previous to Wednesday was not in violation of any peace compact."

Sends American Representative.
President Escalon's special representative, American Consul General John Jenkins, has arrived in Washington from San Salvador, and has been in consultation with Assistant Secretary of State Bacon respecting the reestablishment of peace between the hostile Central American republics.

Mr. Jenkins, though an American official, was requested to come to Washington when it appeared that Guatemala was about to invade Salvador in retaliation for the alleged violation of neutrality by that country as an incident to the revolution.

The state department consented that he should make the trip, and since his arrival he has been advising the department as to the true state of affairs in Central America. The fifth of his statements in this case is understood to be that Guatemala has been for a long time past intent on picking a quarrel with Salvador and has now seized on this pretext for the attack.

Consult Dean of Corps.

Senor Calvo, the Costa Rican minister here, was also a caller at the state department. As dean of the South and Central American diplomatic body, he is intensely interested in all the developments in the present struggle and is being consulted freely by both sides.

Touching the authorization to American Minister Merry to represent Costa Rica in the approaching conference on the deck of the Marblehead, the minister explained that while his country had always maintained an attitude of strict impartiality in the present controversy between Salvador and Guatemala, it was deemed best to have a representative present at the conference in case the discussion should in any way involve the interests of the other Central American countries.

As communication is difficult and infrequent between Costa Rica and the countries to the north, it might not be possible for his government to dispatch a representative to San Jose, the capital, in time to be present at the first conference, hence the request that Mr. Merry be allowed to act.

Costa Rica Wants Peace

Mr. Calvo intimated that after all the principal charge that would be laid upon Mr. Merry by the government of Costa Rica would be to do all within his power to bring about a peaceful settlement of the present complication, thereby carrying forward a policy that Costa Rica has always observed in such cases. In fact, there is reason to believe that Costa Rica really initiated the movement for a conference by appealing directly to the government of the United States to come forward with its good offices when it appeared that hostilities were inevitable.

Salvador and Guatemala must decide through their representatives to the peace conference on board the United States cruiser Marblehead whether Honduras is to be represented in the conference. There are two sides to the controversy so far as the world of diplomacy knows, that of Guatemala and that of Salvador. Honduras' interest in the war is secondary in its nature, but as an ally of Salvador she has become involved to such a degree that the state department believes the other two countries in the controversy will decide to have Honduras represented on board the Marblehead.

ARKANSAS AFTER TRUSTS

Attorney General Sues Cotton Seed Oil Mills for Alleged Violation of the Anti-Trust Laws.

Little Rock, Ark., July 19.—Suits were entered Wednesday against the five cottonseed mills of this city by Attorney General Rogers and prosecuting Attorney Robison, charging them with being members of a combine in violation of the anti-trust law and alleging restraint of trade. The suits ask judgment in the sum of $5,000 per day, aggregating $120,000 against each company, and asking also the revocation of their charters in this state.

It is the understanding in court circles here that suits are to be entered against the remaining 34 mills as soon as the papers can be filed.

Good Excuse

Being a thoughtful wife, she is naturally concerned for her husband's health, and when she sees him eating heartily of pie she reminds him: "Now, dear, you know very well that if you eat so much pie you will have another attack of indigestion. I cannot see why you insist upon eating it when you know it keeps you constantly suffering." "I would not eat it, my angel," he answers, helping himself to more. "Were it not that the last time I did so I dreamed of you?" Realizing that she is witnessing one of those sublime evidences of true affection of which we sometimes read, she smiles happily upon him and is silent.—Omaha Bee.

The Power of Flattery

"Really, Jane," said Mrs. Simpson to her maid, who was not contented with an overwhelming desire to work hard, "you are the laziest girl I ever knew! You can't even do what you're told. I don't think you have one redeeming quality. You must leave on the first of next month." "Law, mum," said Jane, who knew that her mistress was not proof against flattery, "ow can I do me work when I hear you a-singing and a-playin' on the piano that beautiful that I simply can't 'elp stoppin' to listen to you? It ain't my fault that I love good music!" "That will do, Jane! You may stay!"—Stray Stories.

He Had Done His Share

He was ten years old and had gone to the dentist's to get one of the last of his "milk teeth" extracted. It was not a difficult job, and the little fellow never whimpered. Instead, he said to the dentist, when the operation was over: "Well, we made a good job of that, didn't we?" "We're replying the dentist, "Why do you say we?" "What did you do?" "Why, I held the socket while you pulled the tooth, didn't I?"

THAW'S DEFENSE CAUSES BREACH

MOTHER STRONG ADVOCATE OF INSANITY PLEA

WISHES TO AVOID PUBLICITY

Prisoner's Family Prefers to Escape Hardship and Scandal of Trial in Which Justification Would Be the Contention.

New York, July 19.—The chaotic conditions surrounding the preparation of a defense for Harry K. Thaw, accused of the murder of Stanford White, were accentuated Wednesday, and apparently the breach between the prisoner and his mother, Mrs. William Thaw, of Pittsburg, as to the character of the defense is wider than ever.

Following quickly upon a conference of two hours with Thaw in the Tombs, after the mother had twice during the day endeavored to gain the boy's consent to the reemployment of the law firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonnyne, and to consent to a plea of insanity, Clifford W. Hartbridge, Thaw's personal counsel, obtained from Justice Blanchard, in special term of the supreme court late in the day, an order directing Judge Olcott's firm to show cause next Friday why they should not turn over to Hartbridge all the papers in Thaw's case.

Mr. Hartbridge based his motion on a petition signed by Thaw, which was placed on record in connection with the proceedings.

Mother and Wife Make Up

This move was a distinct surprise, being a contradiction of reports which had gained wide circulation earlier in the day to the effect that Thaw had consented to his mother's plan of action.

The rumor that the young man had at last bowed to his mother's will undoubtedly had its origin in the fact that Mrs. William Thaw and Mrs. Harry Thaw, who were in conference with Thaw at the same time, emerged from the prison arm in arm. It was the first time they had been seen together.

Thaw's wife has all along supported him in his demand for a trial on the issues of the case and has opposed the insanity plea.

She has thus been arrayed against the elder Mrs. Thaw, who seems to feel that the only hope of saving her son from death in the electric chair is to depend upon a defense of insanity.

This plea would avoid the further publicity and ignominy of a trial and has been insistently urged upon the prisoner, who, however, apparently remains obdurate.

Conference in Tombs

Mrs. William Thaw had two long conferences with her son. During the second word was dispatched to Mrs. Harry Thaw, summoning her in all haste. She soon reached the prison. The mother had gained the second interview from the warden on the strength of a plea that her mission was of the utmost importance and could not be delayed.

Following the family conferences, Mr. Hartbridge had his interview with Thaw and went directly from the Tombs to the criminal courts building, where he obtained the order in the proceedings against Thaw's former counsel. In speaking of his action in this respect Mr. Hartbridge said:

"I have in my possession certain affidavits made by Mr. Thaw and myself which allege that the law firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonnyne have certain papers which are vitally essential in preparing Thaw's defense. I have from time to time requested them to turn over all the papers in the case to me, but have received no reply."

SALVATION OF THE FALLS.

Damaging of Niagara River at Lewiston Proposed by Eminent Engineer.

In "How to Save Niagara Falls" in the Technical World Magazine, Alton D. Adams, suggests a unique plan for saving the falls from destruction by erecting a great dam at the mouth of the river. "For this great addition to the available power of Niagara river," writes Mr. Adams, "sufficient perhaps to meet all demands during at least another century, it would not be necessary to divert one drop from the volume or detract one inch from the height of the great cataract. Neither would the existing power plants nor those under construction suffer injury by back water from the dam at Lewiston, for it is not proposed to raise the water level in that part of the gorge which is now just below the falls."

In the lower gorge, between the whirlpool and Lewiston, the rapids would, no doubt, be reduced to smooth water by a dam that raised the river level 100 feet at the latter point. As the estimated depth of the whirlpool is now 400 feet, the approximate 50 feet of rise in the water level there would probably change its appearance but little. In the rapids above the whirlpool where the estimated depth is now only 40 feet, there might still be some rough water after the dam was erected, but their grandeur would certainly be buried. Having in view the determined efforts that are being made to divert more and more water from the upper river, it is perhaps not too much to say that a surrender of the rapids for industrial purposes is the price that must be paid in order to save the falls. With the great power development suggested at Lewiston, there could be offered no further diversion of water above the falls.

WANTED MONEY'S WORTH.

When He Went Into a Deal There Had to Be Something in It for Him.

"While most of the money lost in Wall street is contributed by the Uncle Reubens," said a drummer from the metropolis, "I occasionally run across a farmer who isn't looking for the 100 per cent profit. I found such a man in a Pennsylvania village. A canvasser for a magazine had held him and finding him suspicious, proceeded to pile it on to see what the result would be. After he had offered a dollar magazine for half price and agreed to throw in a $5 dictionary free of cost he added:

"Look here, uncle, I'm bound to have your subscription, as you are a prominent man around here. The subscription shall be 50 cents a year. The dictionary is worth the $5 asked; I will add a family Bible worth $10; send you a box of 100 cakes of soap, express you a set of silverware, add a new top buggy and harness, send along four cook books, two United States maps and a set of china, and if you don't think that enough I'll add 50 yards of Brussels carpet worth $2 a yard. Come now, what do you say?"

"Uncle Reuben thought it over for a minute and then shook his head and replied:

"Nope. If you'll add a $200 horse for that buggy I might think it over, but when I go into a deal I want to get my money's worth!"

Unmistakable Guilt.

"You are sure that man cheated?" "Yes, sir," answered Three-Fingered Sam. "He held four aces." "But that is not conclusive evidence." "It was in this case. I knew where the three regular aces was, myself."—Washington Star.

WANTED ART BY THE TON.

Commissioners Wanted Sculptor to Figure on Weight of Group Base.

Of late years Mr. McMonnies has had so many commissions to do groups of sculpture that he has made it a rule never to enter a competition with other artists for an order. In this connection, says World's work, a story is told of an American city that asked him to enter a design for army and navy groups for a soldiers' and sailors' monument. He declined to compete. Then the commission was tendered to him outright. He submitted sketches of his idea for the groups. The committee in charge of the monument wrote him, asking: "How many tons of granite do you intend to use in the base?" His reply was: "If you are in the business of buying granite, you may use as much as you want, one ton or 100,000 tons. I am an artist, and I never yet heard of art being bought by the pound." The question was dropped until the contract for the commission was drawn. When Mr. McMonnies received it he discovered in it a clause providing that in case the bronzes were ever thrown down from their base, by any cause whatever, and any person or property should be injured, he and his heirs forever should be liable for the damage sustained. He returned the contract without comment, unsigned. When the committee wrote him asking the reason, his brief reply was: "Your lawyers are too sharp."

FEE WORTH WAITING FOR.

Thousands Instead of Hundreds Paid David B. Henderson by His Grateful Clients.

David B. Henderson's early professional experiences were not materially different from those of most young lawyers. Finally he was retained in an estate case which involved large interests. The future speaker was mighty hard up, and he was seriously thinking of asking the heirs to pay his bill, which he had never rendered. He was meditating whether to charge them $200 or $300, when one of the heirs, representing them all, stepped briskly into his office and, taking out a roll of $500 bills, said: "Mr. Henderson, I want to pay your bill, and commenced laying down these $500 bills until he had $2,500. Before the astonished young lawyer. Looking up at Mr. Henderson, he said: "Is that enough?" And the lawyer, with that self-possession which subsequently made him famous, calmly said: "Peel off another one and we will call it square."—Harper's Weekly.

Perfectly Normal.

A visitor at an insane asylum was shown over the establishment by one of the inmates, who was so intelligent that it was almost impossible to believe he could be out of his head. "And what are you in here for, my man?" asked the visitor. Immediately a cunning look came into the man's eyes and he looked about him warily. "I'll tell you if you keep it dark," he said, lowering his voice. "I have a mania for swearing. I write 'cuss words' all around. It's great sport. Why they have to hire a man just to follow me around and rub 'em out. But, coming a little closer, I'll tell you a secret. I'm four damns ahead of him and I've got 'hell' written all over your back."—Lippincott's.

Had to Guess Again.

A doctor was waited upon by a patient who confessed to playing in a local brass band. Shortness of breath was the trouble in his case. "Ah, that accounts for it," said the medical man. "That brass band is the very worst thing for you. You'll have to give it up at once—what instrument do you play?" "The big drum," came the unexpected answer.

Lucid as Mud.

A woman canvasser in a recent British election campaign asked a laborer whether he was in favor of protection, and he replied by inquiring what it was. The question embarrassed the woman somewhat. She replied: "I can't go into precise details at the moment, but it is a subject of vital importance to all who care for wild birds."
